

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

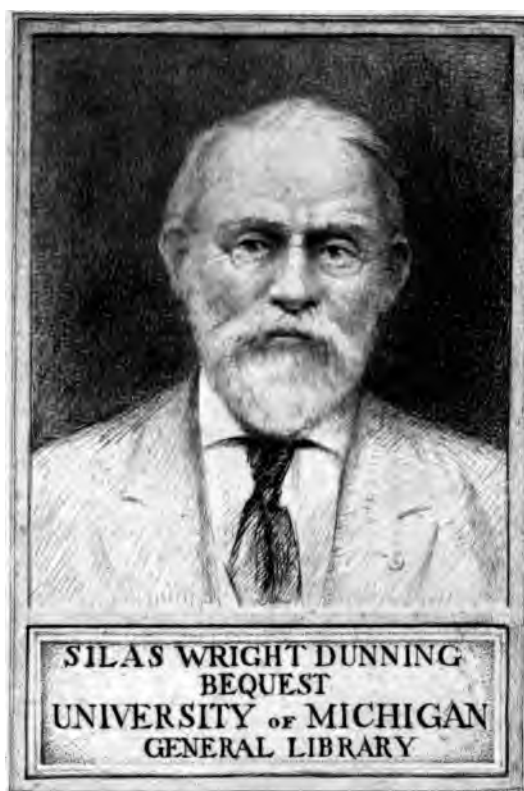

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. 666 An incident in the life of Sir Philip Sidney. While the English army was lying before Zutphen, a dispute arose between some officers of distinction as to who should have the honour to lead a storming party. The Earl of Leicester, who was general, desired them to cast dice for it, which they did on a drum head, and that honour fell to the lot of Sir Philip Sidney. Leicester, on horseback, is pointing to the place of attack; his friend Lord Willoughby rests his right hand on Sir Philip's shoulder.

1825. 70 Bosworth Field. Richard being informed of Henry's station in the battle, determined on an immediate attack in person, and exclaiming "Let all true knights follow me," made a desperate effort to get at Henry, and on his way overthrew the powerful Sir John Cheiney, killed Sir William Brandon, Henry's standard bearer, took the standard (the red dragon of Cadwallader on the Tudor colours), and immediately attacked Henry, between whom the fight was desperate. To the left is seen Lord Stanley closing in upon Richard's men, having waited till Richard made the charge, to save his son's life. In the middle ground, and under Lord Stanley, is Sir John Byron supporting his dying friend Sir Gervoise Clifton, who though engaged on opposite sides, were mutually pledged to assist each other in danger; near to which is the Duke of Norfolk, who while fighting with the Earl of Oxford lost part of his helmet. Oxford, disdainingly to fight a man so unguarded, reined back his horse, when instantly an arrow from an unknown hand hit the Duke in the face and pierced his brain. On the other side and near Henry is Sir Gilbert Talbot, who overthrew and took prisoner Lord Surry; near the extremity of the picture is Sir John Savage leading on his men. Sir Richard Ratclyffe is dead under the principal groupe, having attended Richard in this his desperate and last charge, accompanied by Lord Ferrars of Chartley, Lord Lovel, Catesby, etc., etc.

1878. 609 Wellington's march from Quatre Bras to Waterloo. "The manner in which the Duke of Wellington withdrew his army from the position of Quatre Bras to the one of Waterloo must ever render that retreat a perfect model of operations of this nature, performed in the immediate presence of a powerful enemy."
58, St. Mary's Terrace,
Maida Hill.
1879. 613 On the evening of the Battle of Waterloo. "At Genappe, the first important defile through which the French army retired, an immense number of carriages and waggons of all kinds had been collected together, which presented a rich booty to the Prussians, but the most valuable and most interesting object consisted of Napoleon's travelling carriage, which, with all its contents, fell into the hands of the 15th regiment. He himself had only quitted it a few minutes previously in such haste as to leave behind his hat, which was found inside."

1880. 459 Marlborough after the battle of Ramilies. "The trophies of the battle of Ramilies were immense, but they were even exceeded by its results. . . . The great and unusual proportion of the killed to the wounded shows how desperate the fighting had been, and how much of it, as in ancient warfare, had been an hand to hand contest."
(Elected A.R.A.)
1881. 101 George II at the battle of Dettingen. "George dismounted, drew his sword, and put himself at the head of the troops, exclaiming: 'Now, boys, now for the honour of England: fire and behave bravely, and the French will soon run.'"

1502 Charles I on his way to execution. "The night before his death Charles passed at St. James's Palace. From thence in the morning, with Bishop Juxon at his side, in the centre of a guard of soldiers, he walked, for the last time, through St. James's Park, to Whitehall, in front of which the scaffold was standing ready. The air was bitterly cold as the procession moved along through the leafless avenues of the Park."
1884. 873 Wallenstein: a scene of the Thirty Years' War. "The Thirty Years' War produced no more impressive figure than that of Count Wallenstein, the commander of the Catholic Emperor Ferdinand's armies during his bloody struggles with Protestantism. . . . The common soldiers stood to attention with an involuntary shudder whenever he passed by in silence, like a being from another world."
1885. 1051 William III at the battle of Landen. "Gallant mortal! This moment, now that all is lost, I see him galloping across me, corporal, to the left, to bring up the remains of the English horse along with him to support the right, and tear the laurel

- from Luxemburg's brows, if yet 'tis possible. I see him with the knot of his scarf just shot off, infusing fresh spirit into poor Galway's regiment—riding along the line—then wheeling about, and charging Conti at the head of it. 'Brave! Brave! by heaven!' cried my uncle Toby; 'he deserves a crown.'"

"On the evening of November 6th, 1605, worn out with their hard ride from London, the chief conspirators of the Gunpowder Plot, headed by Percy and Catesby, arrived at Holbeach House, Stephen Littleton's place in Staffordshire. The local forces were closing in upon them, and on the advice of Catesby they had determined to rest and die there. As daylight broke the sheriff with his posse comitatus had reached the house, and after some forcing into the courtyard made good his entry by breaking down the gates. The struggle was short and fierce, and when all was over Catesby and Percy, Jack Wright and his brother Kit, lay where they had fallen shot to death, and the others, wounded and exhausted, were prisoners in the hands of their pursuers."
1892. 331 Charles I at Edge Hill. "The King is come to marshal us, all in his armour drest, etc."
1893. 7 Charge of the 3rd King's Own Light Dragoons, Moodkee. "With praiseworthy gallantry the 3rd Light Dragoons and the second brigade of cavalry turned the left of the Sikh army, and sweeping along the whole rear of its infantry and guns silenced for a time the latter and put their numerous cavalry to flight."

 1827. 1 The dead Elephant—scene in Ceylon. A party of English gentlemen on a shooting excursion in the island of Ceylon, arriving at the side of a lake at the dawn of day descried a dead elephant of an enormous size lying near the water's edge. An alligator had mounted the carcase and kept possession of the prey until he had gorged his fill. The animal next in strength then gained possession, and the weaker creatures came on in succession—jackalls, adjutants, vultures, and other predatory birds and beasts were all on the alert. The astonished beholders ordered a black servant in advance of the party to fire, when a scene of confusion ensued which may be imagined but cannot be described.

1827. 36 Attack of a Boa Constrictor. In the year 1792 the captain of a country ship going through the eastern islands sent a boat on shore to obtain a supply of provisions, leaving one of her crew in charge of her. On their return, as they approached the boat, they perceived to their horror, that a snake of enormous size had writhed itself about their sleeping companion. The tail of the serpent was fortunately on the ground, and the Lascars immediately commenced their attack on it with such weapons as they generally take on a shore excursion. Roused by a violent cut on the tail from an axe, the huge monster reared his head high above the stern of the boat, and looked at his assailants with the utmost fury; but so vigorous were their blows that he was soon disabled. The vertebra being wounded, he was deprived of power and the imprudent boatman was saved. The snake being measured after it was killed, was found to exceed seventy feet in length.

"The nearest of the enemy's ships was now distant about a mile from the 'Royal Sovereign,' and it was at this time, while she was pressing alone into the midst of the combined fleets that Lord Nelson said to Captain Blackwood, 'See how that noble fellow, Collingwood, takes his ship into action! How I envy him!' On the other hand, Admiral Collingwood, well knowing his commander and friend, observed, 'What would Nelson give to be here?'"
77 Captain, afterwards Lord Collingwood, in the "Excellent," of 74 guns, attacking the "Santissima Trinidad" of 140 in the battle off Cape St. Vincent, February 14, 1801. "The 'Excellent' compelled the 'San Isidoro' to hoist English colours, and I thought the large ship, 'Salvador del Mundo,' had also struck, but Captain Collingwood, disdainful of the parade of taking possession of beaten enemies, most gallantly pushed up with every sail set, to save his friend and messmate, who was to all appearance in a critical situation. The 'Excellent' ranged up and passed within ten feet of the 'San Nicholas,' giving her a most awful fire. The 'San Nicholas' luffing up, the 'San Josef' fell aboard of her, and the 'Excellent' passed on to the 'Santissima Trinidad,' the largest ship ever built."

1837. 46 The Hindoo Girl's offering. The picture illustrates a practice prevalent amongst the females of Hindostan, some of whom are incomparably beautiful. When the moon is at the full these eastern maidens repair to the banks of the sacred Ganges, bearing with them little earthenware lamps fed with cocoanut oil, which, having lighted, they launch and watch the progress of their meteor boats down the Shians with the greatest anxiety, convinced if the lamps continue to burn until they fade into distance, that their absent lovers remain constant; on the contrary, should they become extinguished, it is held to be an augury of calamity.

 1813. 1 A child rescued by its mother
 from an eagle's nest. It is within the memory of some of the oldest inhabitants of a mountainous district in Scotland, that, impelled by maternal solicitude to recover her infant, which an eagle had borne away to its nest, a mother climbed to the very topmost crag of a cliff so steep and terrific, that the hardest bird-catchers in that region had hitherto pronounced it inaccessible. She succeeded in bringing off her child before it had received any material injury, the bird hovering around her during the attempt, but not offering
 in any way to molest her.

- but two hours for the purpose. Hals, who was hurried away from the tavern, sat down to his work in a very expeditious manner. In short, he proceeded so far, that he desired Van Dyck to look at what he had done; but that artist not only seemed to be much pleased, but told Hals that such work seemed to him so very easy, he was persuaded he could do it himself. Immediately he took the palette and pencils, made Frank Hals sit down, and spent a quarter of an hour in painting his portrait; but the moment Hals cast his eyes on it, he cried out in astonishment, that no hand except that of Vandyck could work so wonderfully."

the Queene, with the three ladies Harbert (the Queene's sister), Lane and Tirwit to
the Tower; whom the King,
sternly beholding, called him

to him, who, on his knees, whispered to the King. The King called him knave, arrant knave, and beastlyfoole, and commanded him to avant out of his presence; which words the Queene heard, though they were low spoken. Then he departed with his traine, the whole mould of his device broken. The Queene, seeing the King so chafed, spoke for the Lord Chancellor. Ah, poore soule, quoth hee, thou little knowest how evill hee deserveth at thy hands; he hath been towards thee, sweetheart, an arrant knave, and so let him goe."

"Lord Raglan, anxious to gain some commanding point which would enable him to obtain a more definite notion of the disposition and numbers of the enemy, was moving with his staff along the ridge in front of the second division camp, when General Strangways, who

- was riding at his side, was mortally wounded by a shell which burst inside Colonel Somerset's horse, that officer miraculously escaping uninjured. The battle was raging on every part of the field. The struggle in the Sandbag battery was desperately maintained against fearful odds by guardsmen and linesmen intermixed, animated by the presence of the Duke of Cambridge, whose horse was shot under him during the conflict. It was about 11 o'clock when the welcome sounds of the French bugles were heard above the rattling and rolling of the firing. The Zouaves came up on the right. The enemy's left flank was turned. His batteries on the heights were silenced by Dixon's guns. By 12 o'clock the Russian columns were in full retreat along the whole of the line, and the day was ours."

When the singing competition was held at the castle of Wartburg (Elizabeth's home), he came back, and took his place among the singers. Tannhäuser, in his turn, lifted up his voice, but nothing could he sing save one song—the praise of Venus. For this sin Tannhäuser was cast out. Despairing, he joined the pilgrims, with Rome for goal. But forgiveness was not for him. Others the Pope absolved; but to Tannhäuser he said: "It is easier for my staff to blossom than for thy sin to be forgiven." So Tannhäuser returned to Eisenach, and there he met the funeral procession of Elizabeth, whom grief had slain. To him at that moment Venus appeared in the glory of her baleful beauty, and it was for Tannhäuser to choose between the living, passionate and glowing—and the pallid, dead. "Elizabeth!" He cries, and then falls dead, while the vision of Venus—defeated in the supreme moment, fades away, and the Pope's staff—miraculously blossomed into leaf—is brought by hurrying messengers from Rome, as a token of Divine forgiveness."

1814. 344 The storming of San Sebastian on the 31st of August by the left wing of the allied British and Portuguese army, under the command of Lieut.-General Sir T. Graham: the assault led by Sir J. Leith. (Military Painter to H.R.H. the Prince Regent.) 9, Margaret St., Cavendish Sq.
1815. 481 Battle of Orthes: charge of the British Cavalry, under the command of Lords Combermere and E. Somerset, on the French retiring columns, at the close of the battle fought on the 27th February, 1814.
1816. 206 The Battle of Waterloo. General advance of the British lines, driving in the broken columns of the French army, after Buonaparte's last desperate effort to break through our right centre with his Imperial Guards, a square of grenadiers of which are seen in the right of the picture, which gave way to the charge of the Foot Guards. The hussar brigades of Generals Sir H. Vivian and Sir C. Grant (on the left of the picture) are dashing in among the broken cavalry, led on by the Marquis of Anglesea. The Duke of Wellington and staff are on the right of the picture. The Observatory, as seen in the distance on the left, and La Belle Alliance on the right, in front of which Buonaparte and his staff are seen.—Painted from sketches made on the ground a few days after the action: and from information from the Duke of Wellington and Marquis of Anglesea's staffs, Royal Engineer department, etc., etc., etc.
1817. 422 Waterloo—charge of the Second Brigade of Cavalry (commanded by the late Major-General Sir W. Ponsonby, consisting of the 1st or Royals, 2nd or R.N.B., and 6th or Inniskillen Dragoons), and capture of the

Eagle of the 45th French Regiment of the line by Serjeant Ewart, of the right half squadron of the Greys. The Brigade is seen in the distance, with Sir W. Ponsonby and staff passing the hedge (La Haye Sainte) to charge a column of French infantry, which formed part of the first corps, commanded by the Count D'Erlon, who with his staff are on the hill in the distance on the left. The serjeant is supposed to have cut down the officer who bore the Eagle, and is in the act of striking at a private that grasped it, who was also cut down. A part of the column is in the foreground on the left and distance, with some companies throwing themselves into column. The farm of La Haye Sainte is seen in the distance. On the right of the hedge is the 8th Brigade (26th, 32nd, 79th, and 95th foot), commanded by Major-General Sir J. Kempt, and 9th Brigade (1st, 42nd, and 92nd foot) commanded by Major-General Sir Dennis Pack. Major Bull's troop of Royal Horse Artillery are on the right of the infantry, and are playing to cover the advance of the cavalry. In this charge it was observed that many of the French infantry fell suddenly, as if shot, but who on our men passing, rose up and fired; this being perceived, they received no quarter. A man of this description, in the act of cocking his musket, is shown. This charge took place between one and two o'clock p.m. on the 18th of June, 1815.

10, Park Terrace, Camden Town.

1818. 401 Death of the son of Prince Platoff, in a charge of cavalry which took place at Vereia, in Russia, in the campaign of 1812; from Labauve. "Platoff, who saw his best soldiers falling around him, forgot his own danger, and with an anxious eye looked round for his favourite son; but the hour approached when this unfortunate father was destined to feel that life is sometimes almost insupportable. The unhappy youth had returned from the heat of the battle, and was preparing to renew the attack, when he received a mortal wound from a Hulan Pole. At this moment his father appeared, and flying to his assistance threw himself upon him. On seeing his beloved parent, the son heaved a deep sigh, and would have expressed for the last time his affection and his duty, but as he attempted to speak, his strength failed him, and he breathed his last."

1819. 308 Passage of the river Beresina by the grand French army, on its retreat from Moscow, Nov. 7th. The time represented is immediately after the rear guard had passed the bridge, and it is seen on the opposite side of the river on the right of the picture. The advanced guard of the Russians is shown in various parts, driving the enemy before them. On the right, in the foreground, is a Bashkie chief, leading on his troops, consisting of Cossacks and Bashkies. In the distance on the left of the picture, are seen the Russian columns advancing, and a battery which played on the bridge during the whole day. On the left is a French tumbril, and behind it the carriage of a French General taken by a party of the Cuirassiers of the Imperial Russian Guard.

1822. 293 An attack on a French convoy and escort in a pass in the mountains of Guadalxara, Castile, by the Guerillas, under Don Jean Martin, the Empecinado.
1823. 332 Greeks and Turks. Defeat of the Turks under the command of Ali Pacha (in his attack on the Republic of Suli), by the Souliotes, in the defile of Klissura. "Never had the Mahometans penetrated so far into the mountains. At the sight of their danger the Souliotes raised a cry, which resounded even in the remotest recesses of their mountains: the cry announced the public danger. Suli was lost, had it not been for a Howrie, the celebrated Mosca, the wife of Tzavella (introduced on the breach), nobly emulating her husband in the defence of her country: she called the women to arms: and forcing the warriors, who were in full retreat, to turn about, she rallied, harangued, and animated them to fresh exertions. All influenced by the same generous passion, the love of their country, the Souliotes, both men and women, seemed now to have but one soul, and, as it were, but one body: seizing by collective strength immense blocks of stone and huge masses of rock, they rolled them down, with hideous crash, on the heads of their invaders. The Turkish column was broken to its very centre."
1824. 185 English travellers attacked by banditti on the road to Rome, between Gaeta and Terracina.
263 A Highland clan escorting the Regalia of Scotland. This event took place during His Majesty's visit to Edinburgh. The figure of the chieftain, represented with the sword in his left hand, is in consequence of wounds received in the right arm during the late wars. It is also necessary to remark that the sceptre is shown as in the original, which has been bent by some accident in former times.
1825. 449 Rencontre of the Greeks and Turks before the citadel of Patras during the campaign of 1823, in which Constanza Zacari, the heroine of Mistras, was wounded. (Vide Blaquiere's second Visit to Greece.) The Turks were defeated.

1850. 419 The brooch of Lorn. "After the defeat of Robert the Bruce, by McDougall of Lorn and a greatly superior force at Dalry, three of Lorn's followers vowed to take the King, dead or alive. They assailed him in a narrow pass; one seizing the reins, another thrusting his arm between his stirrup and foot, with the view to unhorse him; while the third, springing up behind him, attempted to bring him to the ground. One blow felled the foremost assailant to the earth; and, while with a skilful menage of his horse, he brought the other beneath its feet, a second blow of Bruce's sword cleft the skull of the last. But the expiring Highlander clung to the mantle with his dying grasp, till the brooch gave way, and was left with the royal mantle in his hand." The brooch of Bruce, thus abandoned by the King, has been preserved, amid many strange vicissitudes, and is still in the possession of the lineal descendants of the Lord of Lorn.

 3, Gloucester Place, Edinburgh.
 1840. 482 Prince Charles Edward and
 the Highlanders entering Edinburgh after the battle
 of Preston. "The Highlanders, having defeated the Government forces under the command of General
 Sir John Cope, at Preston,
 a village nine miles from
 Edinburgh, on Saturday,
 21st September, 1745, entered the metropolis the day immediately following
 the battle, carrying along with them the spoil of Cope's army and a vast number of prisoners. The Prince entered the town in the afternoon, and was received with the hearty greetings of a great portion of the inhabitants; while the adherents of the reigning
 family witnessed with dismay the last triumph of the Stuarts. The Prince occupies the centre of the picture; accompanied on his right by the Duke of Perth and on the left by Lord George Murray; before whom, and armed with a lochaber axe and target, is the Miller of Quarnahayle, who is said to have given Colonel Gardiner his death-blow. Near him, and in the act of saluting the Prince, stands Lochiel, the unfortunate chief of the clan Cameron. Further to the left and surrounded by a group of ladies is the Marquis of Tulliebardine, who is described as a cavalier of the old stamp. . . . The two pipers, who are striving who shall blow the loudest tempest of the national music, terminate this group. On the right of the Prince is a figure bearing a target and arrayed in the trews, a dress only worn by the Dhunniemassals or gentlemen of the Highlands. He is meant to represent the young Clanranald, and leads a portion of his clan, which formed the Prince's bodyguard. In the foreground is one of Sir John Cope's captured fieldpieces, over which leans Hamish M'Gregor, son of the celebrated outlaw Rob Roy; he is keeping watch over the spoil of the action. The outside stair is occupied principally by a group adverse to the Stuarts. The figure with the Bible and buff belt is the gifted Gilfillan, mentioned in 'Waverley,' and behind him are a few of his followers. Two or three steps lower are M'Laurin, the celebrated mathematician, and young Home the poet, both energetic opponents of Prince Charles. The procession is represented as moving down the Canongate, towards the palace of Holyrood. The buildings on the right, with the projecting clockhouse, is the Canongate jail; further up the street is the Netherbow Port or eastern gateway of the city; beyond is the Tronchurch steeple; and higher in the extreme distance a part of the castle of Edinburgh."
